Sustainable design & engineering principles

Embedding sustainable design and engineering principles in all the residential projects that Blue life is developing at Azuri, is a crucial step towards creating more environmentally friendly and energy-efficient housing options, to align with the ethos of the village to promote sustainability, happiness and wellbeing whilst reducing the carbon footprint of the residences.

Here are some key sustainable features and practices that have been incorporated into the Ariza townhouses: overhangs and verandas to provide shading, natural cross-ventilation by locating major openings on each end of the building, separation between each duplex to allow natural ventilation across the site, solar reflective waterproofing on the roofs to minimise unwanted solar heat gains during summer, greenscape features to reduce heat gains around the villa during the summer, smart energy and water metering, waste sorting and recycling, energy efficient electrical equipment installed in the townhouse.

Bluelife believes in creating environmentally responsible, cost-effective, and attractive housing options that benefit both the residents and the planet.

A distinctive way of life

Choosing Azuri means choosing a pace of life that allows you to find the balance you have always wished for, in a serene and secure setting.

Evolve in a peaceful living environment... or in the heart of a vibrant community.

Facing the golf course or the ocean, on a single level or looking out over the sea, each residence offers a haven of peace in harmony with nature. Forget the passage of time as the gentle breeze lulls you on your veranda.

Reconnecting with the world requires just a few steps; the friendly, urban atmosphere of the village brings with it an exciting whirlwind of possibilities. From market days to happy hours, a boat ride, a morning walk on the beach, a yoga session on the sand beneath the full moon, or a bike ride along the coast - in Azuri, every experience is memorable.

Personal or collective development

There is no age limit when it comes to learning new things. Azuri proves the point - from its Montessori school to its tennis academy!

Discovering new skills and interests is a source of well-being and fulfilment.

Giving back is another such source, and the Azuri community has embraced this.

From #Prankont, with its positive impact on the environment, to social initiatives for the wider region, taking action is a central philosophy for this village with a soul.

These are the factors that make Azuri's way of life distinctive. A clever mix of contrasts that means each resident can live life their own way, whilst living well together!

Recharge alone... or surrounded by loved ones

For some people, wellness is a moment to themselves. A massage at the spa, a yoga session or simply relaxing around the house, immersed in a book.

It is also important to be in good company. Family, close friends, those new neighbours who look so friendly, the shopkeepers who play a part in everyday life or the children's flock of friends... A multicultural community like an extended tribe, driven by a shared aspiration: to create a way of life that meets each individual's needs.
